2 Purpose and legal basis

The Company uses video surveillance systems for the safety of persons on its premises and the protection of facilities and goods from illegal acts, such as theft, burglary and damage. The processing is based on article 6 par. 1 (1). f of Regulation (EU) 2016/679 ("GDPR"), i.e. the legitimate interests of the Company and the third parties protected.

3 Legitimate interests and scope of the adoption

The legitimate interests consist of the protection of the life, physical integrity and property of employees, employees, visitors, associates and other persons who are legally in the supervised areas, as well as the protection of their property and equipment.

Capture is limited to areas that need to be monitored for the above purposes, such as entrances and exits, access points, communal passage areas and parking spaces, depending on the configuration and security needs of each property. Image data is collected and no sound is recorded. Video surveillance is not used to monitor or evaluate employee performance and does not focus on areas where privacy is unduly compromised.

This document does not cover stand-alone video surveillance systems that operate under the responsibility of employees or other third parties. For these, the information is provided by the respective controller.

4 Retention Time

The recorded material is kept for 14 days from its receipt and is then automatically deleted, if no event related to the purpose of the processing has been detected.

In the event of an incident, only the relevant part of the material is isolated. If the incident concerns the Company, the material may be kept in a separate file for up to thirty (30) days from the incident; if it concerns a third party, up to three (3) months. Any further retention is carried out only if there is a special legal and documented need, for the necessary period of time, in particular for the fulfillment of a legal obligation or the establishment, exercise or support of legal claims.
